The Surprising Benefits of Volunteering

People choose to volunteer for so many reasons. The world has no shortage of challenges and your students can be a part of the solution! Working as a teacher, schools assistant, outdoor instructor, community worker, caring or medical assistant makes a positive difference in the lives of others while helping the volunteer to realise the world beyond their own borders.

Gaining professional and life experience on placement often leads to greater focus and drive towards university studies as the time away has provided a global context to the volunteers next steps in life. Aside from seeing a new part of the world, working with diverse communities, and gaining cultural awareness, this kind of life experience makes a real impact with future employers. Excitement at Camp - Matt's Gap Year in Canada

Matt Brown has been enjoying his ultimate gap year as a Lattitude volunteer in Canada. Not only has he had a huge amount of fun leading a range of group activities at Kamp Kiwanis in southern Canada, he's found it to be the most rewarding experience, and he now knows what he wants to do with the rest of his life!

Volunteer Voice - Making a Difference in Vanuatu

Lattitude offers a wide range of placement choices, with our teaching placements in Vanuatu being one of the most challenging. Miika Coppard decided to completely step away from her comfort zone and make a difference in the lives of young students in a remote village school on Ambae Island. During the initial few weeks at her placement, Cyclone Pam tore through Vanuatu and devastated many villages and communities. Fortunately Miika's village and school were relatively unscathed and she was able to continue her placement. Miika also compiled a video of her unique experiences and island home, to watch her video and read more from her amazing placement, click here.

5. My Career Match

Career Exploration

Engaging Students Can Be a Challenge!

Career exploration is sometimes limited to only what students have been exposed to. Often students pursue careers based on familiarity. That means choosing careers their parents have had or suggested, or those glamorized on television and social media, or others they encounter as adolescents. But there is value in thinking outside the box when it comes to career exploration.

Many students can't see an opportunity because for them one isn't present. The opportunity only presents itself when a student's self-esteem and belief are activated.

There's significant research on positive psychology in schools. Schools are actively pursuing Positive Education Programs. Like many other countries our schools have aimed for academic excellence as primary evidence for their success. But there is a growing need for a more holistic approach with a stronger focus on well-being leading to career choices that offer hope and opportunity.

The starting point of every career plan is self-discovery. Who I am, what am I good at and how I can make a difference? Key competencies in building and managing a career revolve around the dynamics of identifying oneself, being aware of behaviours and attitudes, relating to others and exploring opportunities.

MyCareerMatch is more than just about career choices. We help students discover their strengths and employability skills. We encourage education and self-empowerment so that students have a positive image of themselves and what they're capable of achieving.

MyCareerMatch is available at Good Shepherd Lutheran College. Students who wish to take part in this program, need to register with Mr Handreck at the College's Career Office.
